ALLIES STAND PAT ON FIEUME AFFAIR

Wilson Protest and Ultimatum For Jugo-Slavs Disregarded

Paris, Feb. 16.—Great Britain and France, in their reply to President Wilson's "bombshell note," stand pat on their Adriatic policy, which he has vetoed.

The note is signed by Premiers Lloyd George and Millerand and is said to record the allies' absolute determination to go through with the program agreed on among themselves Italy being the third party.

Briefly, this program confronts the kingdom of Jugo Slavia with the choice of accepting the compromise of January 20 or seeing the now-famous secret pact of London enforced to the letter. The compromise is a give-and-take proposition, which makes Fiume a free city under jurisdiction of the League of Nations.

It gives the Jugo-Slav kingdom considerable advantages, such as the cession of Albania, but it does not give all the Jugo Slavs want. The pact of London, however, is even less acceptable to them.

President Wilson flatly opposed this whole proceeding of territorial barter and insisted on American participation in the final settlement, in default whereof he made a strong threat, the exact nature of which is not yet fully disclosed here, though the general understanding is that it amounted to the ultimatum that if America was not consulted and the Adriatic problem settled without her consent, she would no longer concern herself with European affairs.

Exact Words Not Clear.

Another version is that he threatened only to withdraw American concern with the whole Adriatic affair, which indirectly would mean primarily Italy.

But whatever may have been the precise extent of the threat, the French and British premiers have decided to take the risk and in their reply, believed to have reached Washington by this time, announce that they can not turn back. One pressing reason for this is that they have promised the Italian premier a solution one way or the other before he leaves London for Rome to report to his people who are clamoring for a settlement.

Messrs. Millerand and Lloyd George, in the reply, rush to Italy's defense against the implication that she is motivated by selfish ambitions. Thus for the first time, the three allied nations form a united front against the American President.

In the past stages of the Adriatic quarrel, France and Britain either have been on the fence or openly on his side against their ally. In this change observers profess to see a significant sign. Yet, Italy herself is extremely anxious to retain the good will of the United States and her premier, Signor Nitti, has openly declared that "America can annul every decision."

The Franco-British note takes considerable pains, it is averred, to emphasize Italy's sacrifices in the war and the high motives and ideals for which she embraced the allied cause—words which recall many an identical argument flung by Italy into the faces of her allies with no little bitterness only a few months back.

At the same time that the reply to President Wilson was dispatched, Lloyd George, as president of the new "peace conference" at London, notified the Jugo-Slav delegation in London that the allies' attitude is unchanged, that the virtual ultimatum to Jugo-Slavia of January 20, stands.

The Belgrade government, meanwhile is fully expected to take heart from President Wilson's attitude and defy the allies. There are reports of an internal crisis in the kingdom, the Davidovitch cabinet having resigned because Prince Regent Alexander refused to dissolve the provisional national assembly and order new elections.

In official circles here, the view was cautiously advanced that the two kingdoms—Italy and Jugo-Slavia—might best be left to settle the Adriatic problem between themselves. Premier Nitti himself is said to have suggested this, saying it might be the best way to prevent a state of chaos before which the present condition would pale into insignificance.

REV. FUQUA'S RECORD.

Rev. R. E. Fuqua, of this place, who has been pastor of various churches on the North side ofough River for several years has a record for conducting funerals, hard to beat.

There have been thirty-three persons buried in the Clear Run Cemetery and the funeral services held for 38 were conducted by Rev. Fuqua. He received calls to conduct funerals of three of the others but owing to sickness or absence from the community could not officiate, the other two were buried before his date as pastor in that community.

ONLY A HANKER MAY DO SUCH ODD STUNTS

Mut Hunter, Cashier of the Bank of Hartford, sauntered into our office one evening this week with a collection of rare coins, among which was a $3.00 gold piece, a $2.50, a $1.00 and last, a twenty-five cent piece of the same yellow stuff, the first we had ever seen.

The fact is we have never taken much to money of any sort, only hankers and big profiteers are able to collect coins of rare dimensions and dates, such as those displayed by Mut, the Hanker.

HARTFORD TOWN TEAM VANISHES HEAVEN DAM

The Heaven Dam town Team met the Hartford Basket Ball Team on the floor here, Saturday night in one of the best games seen here this season. While the score was largely in favor of Hartford, yet the work showed the two teams almost evenly balanced, other than in the ebbing of free flings. James Glenn did the best pitching at the netted circle ever seen in Hartford, and we doubt if it has ever been excelled by any one in the county. He sunk the ball through the old castiron ring 14 times out of 15 chances and nearly all of the throws were clean cut and clear of the hoop.

Heaven Dam had more chances by far, than Hartford, but to save them, they could not locate the basket on free trials. 18 fouls were called on Hartford during the last episode. The great number of fouls given both teams would naturally indicate that the game was not played by ladies, although a large number of the fouls charged to Hartford were called on Claude King, who played center, because he did not know just what to do with the hand he was not using when the ball was being put in play. King says they went and changed the rules on him since he played last.

All members of both teams played a good game, the guards being well on to their jobs as the score indicates, each team making 4 field goals. The line up:

Heaven Dam	Hartford
Rogers, 3	F. Glenn, 16
Render, 5	P. Taylor, 10
Hoover, 2	C. King, 2
Gardner, 2	G. Duke, 2

WASH DUNCAN DEAD

Wash Duncan, colored, died at his home in East Hartford, Sunday night after being ill a short time, of "flu" and pneumonia. He lived alone in a little shack in the eastern portion of town and had been very ill for a few days before it became known, then only perhaps by failure of his appearance upon the streets.

Wash was known by almost every man, woman and child in and around Hartford. He was of a rather eccentric nature, loyal beyond the average, to the few whom he deemed his friends, and just about the best hater one could find in a days travel.

BREAK IN "BIG FOUR" MAY BE END OF A. M. PROTEST

Washington, Feb. 16.—The protest of the United States government to the allied prime ministers against their secret agreement settling the Fiume questions contrary to President Wilson's plan, means, according to all officials, a serious break in the "Big Four," even tho the protest be considered for the present as referring to the Adriatic question alone. It is denied that the note of the United States stated that if there were not a satisfactory settlement there would be a "withdrawal by the United States from European affairs." That denial came from Mr. Tumulty at the White House. In other quarters it was held, however, that the assumption that the United States would withdraw altogether is necessarily well founded, if the premiers of France, Italy and Great Britain do not thoroughly and adequately explain their secret and offensive diplomacy. The President's note, it was stated, was intended to serve notice that the United States will not be a party to European secret diplomacy and will resent any attempt of the heads of European governments to settle, without consultation with the United States, any questions in which the United States has an interest.

In political circles the President's note to the premiers was regarded as his answer to reports which have come from Paris and London that he was to be deserted by the allies. He is letting them know, it is thought, that casting him aside can not be done without consequences; that if the premiers of Europe continue to ignore him in connection with European settlements they may expect reprisals.

On the face of the indirect statements made from Europe and those made here today, there conclusions appeared to be warranted.

CORONER'S INQUEST ON LEXINGTON DEAD

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 16.—Coroner John Anglin held an inquest this afternoon into the deaths of the six victims of the mob riot in Lexington last Monday in connection with the attempt to lynch Will Lockett, slayer of little Geneva Hardman.

In the case of Benjamin F. Carrier the verdict of the jury was that he was not in any way identified with the riot and his death was purely accidental.

In the cases of the other five, L. M. King, John M. Rogers, J. L. Thomas, James Massengale and William Ehrington, the verdict of the jury was that they came to their deaths from wounds resulting from shots fired by the State militia and by other unknown persons.

Twenty-two witnesses testified at the inquests. Coroner Anglin said he found a revolver on the body of J. L. Thomas of Versailles. The revolver, he said, was in Thomas' right shoe, hidden by his trousers and overalls. The weapon was produced at the inquest and was fully loaded. It was of 38-caliber.

That the crowd was on the steps of the Court House when the shooting started was the substance of the testimony. The number in the crowd rushing the Court House was placed at from twenty to 100 and estimates of the time the shooting lasted varied from five seconds to a minute, according to the testimony of the witnesses.

It was shown that shots were fired from the County Judge's office, where Magistrate, W. S. Hunt said, nobody was in the room but himself and a soldier, the latter firing twice out of the window. This clears any conflicting evidence concerning shots from the County Judge's office and by whom they were fired.

Some witnesses said they saw County Judge Bullock fire out of his office window. Others, including Court House officials, swore Bullock was in the Circuit Court room when the shooting occurred and that Bullock did not leave the Circuit Court room until after the shooting had ended.

George Luigart said he was hit by shot while standing in the rear of the crowd, but was not much hurt.

FRANCO-BRITISH ALLIANCE URGED

Ignore League And Wilson Visionary Ideals Is
French Advice

Paris, Feb. 14.—The French press campaign for a strong Franco-British alliance has been suddenly revived, and is supported by some of the leading men of the republic. The whole press, after some days of the bitterest criticism directed against Britain's policy, has swung back to the demand for unbreakable bonds between the two countries, and is unanimously demanding that France and Britain abandon "the visionary ideals of Wilson" and leave the League of Nations to take care of itself at the same time signing a strong treaty of alliance binding the two nations in the common defense of their rights in the world over.

The sudden return to this line of propaganda is due, no doubt, to the reawakening of the German bugaboo, owing to the new fear that Germany is to her attitude in the last few days, will bend all her efforts to evade her obligations under the Versailles treaty.

An diplomatic circles here no secret is made of the fact that America's withdrawal from the European "game" is a considerable relief both to Britain and France. It is everywhere apparent that the statesmen of these two nations have "abandoned President Wilson to his fate," as one Paris organ puts it, and that they now mean to travel the arduous path of reconstruction without America, but firmly bound to each other.

The Paris papers have "featured" conspicuously the American naval program, showing that the United States has taken up second place among the world sea powers and first place among the merchant marines. Alfred Capus, member of the academy, winds up an article entitled "Alliances" with these remarks:

"Confronted with Germany's refusal to deliver her criminals, we can only resort to the treaty to secure supplementary pledges and present Germany with a bill of damages for her violation of the signed contract."

"But such a measure is impossible unless the interested parties are bound together in formal conventions. Without an alliance any treatment is sure to become a scrap of paper. Our alliances dominate the situation. The policy toward Russia and Germany, and peace itself, depend upon alliances."

POLITICAL PARAGRAPHS.

Washington, February.—That there are 25,000 superfluous clerks in Washington is spite of the necessity for the most rigid Governmental economy is asserted by Representative J. W. Wood, of Iowa, chairman of the House Committee on Appropriations.

In commenting upon the failure of the Administration to eliminate the despotic Democrats appointed for war purposes only, Mr. Wood said:

"There are the war we had in Washington employees in the War Department to the number of 2,911. That was on April 6, 1917. How many do you think we have now? We have 21,216 clerks, and the war is over. The President told us on the 11th day of November, 1918, a year and a half ago:

"The war thus comes to an end, and it terms that the German command can not renew it."

"And yet you have today, or did have on December 31, 1919, 21,216 clerks in the War Department, and the Secretary of War sends his threat to Congress, with all that number of clerks—and only about 1,100 will lose their jobs if we do not grant this appropriation—that he will not answer the letters of Members of Congress and he will not furnish to the Bureau of War Risk Insurance and other bureaus, the information about the discharge of soldiers unless we will consent to be held up and grant him the request which he makes and which would be an endorsement of all of the inefficient work that has been going on in the War Department.

"I think there is nothing perhaps that will come before Congress at this session that is going to determine whether or not we are to have real, efficient management in the executive departments and the discharge of useless clerks. It is here discovered that the Secretary of War threatens, in a letter addressed to the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, that he will not answer and can not answer letters with regard to discharged soldiers unless we give this appropriation, and yet, out of the lump sum appropriation of $4,000,000, he has created in his office a publicity bureau—for what nobody knows—with a man at the head of it drawing $3,900 a year. That publicity man is there now with a force under him. The War Department had during normal times, in rough figures, approximately $2,000,000 for its clerical force in Washington, and that amount is carried now in the bill for this year. In addition to that the legislative bill carried $3,500,000 as a lump sum for securing the draft records for the adjutant generals of the several States. In addition to that there is another lump-sum appropriation of $4,000,000 for clerks in the War Department for the year. Let us see how that was allotted by the Secretary of War. That appropriation of $4,000,000 was given because Congress wanted the Adjutant General to be able to get the records of the soldiers of this war promptly, and not hold those records open for 30 years. The letter of the Adjutant General is rather misleading, not intentionally. The Adjutant General would have you believe by that letter that for 30 years after the civil war there was a force employed, whereas, as a matter of fact, a force was not placed in the War Department to compile the records until about 30 years after the close of the civil war.

"Let us see what the Secretary of War did with the $4,000,000 that we gave him for the force to furnish the information that the boys who have been discharged want and should have. The Secretary of War took for his own office $277,000 and yet he has the statutory peace-time organization in addition. He gave to the Surgeon General of the United States $335,000. He gave to the Director of Purchase, Storage and Traffic $418,000. He gave to the Chief of Ordnance $650,000. What are these clerks doing? They are down there now doing the work for officers who will not resign, who are here in Washington, as a rule drawing more salary than they could draw at home—not all, by any means, but in the main—preparing work in the Ordnance Department, sending up to Congress this plan and that scheme."

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

Dollars and Cents.

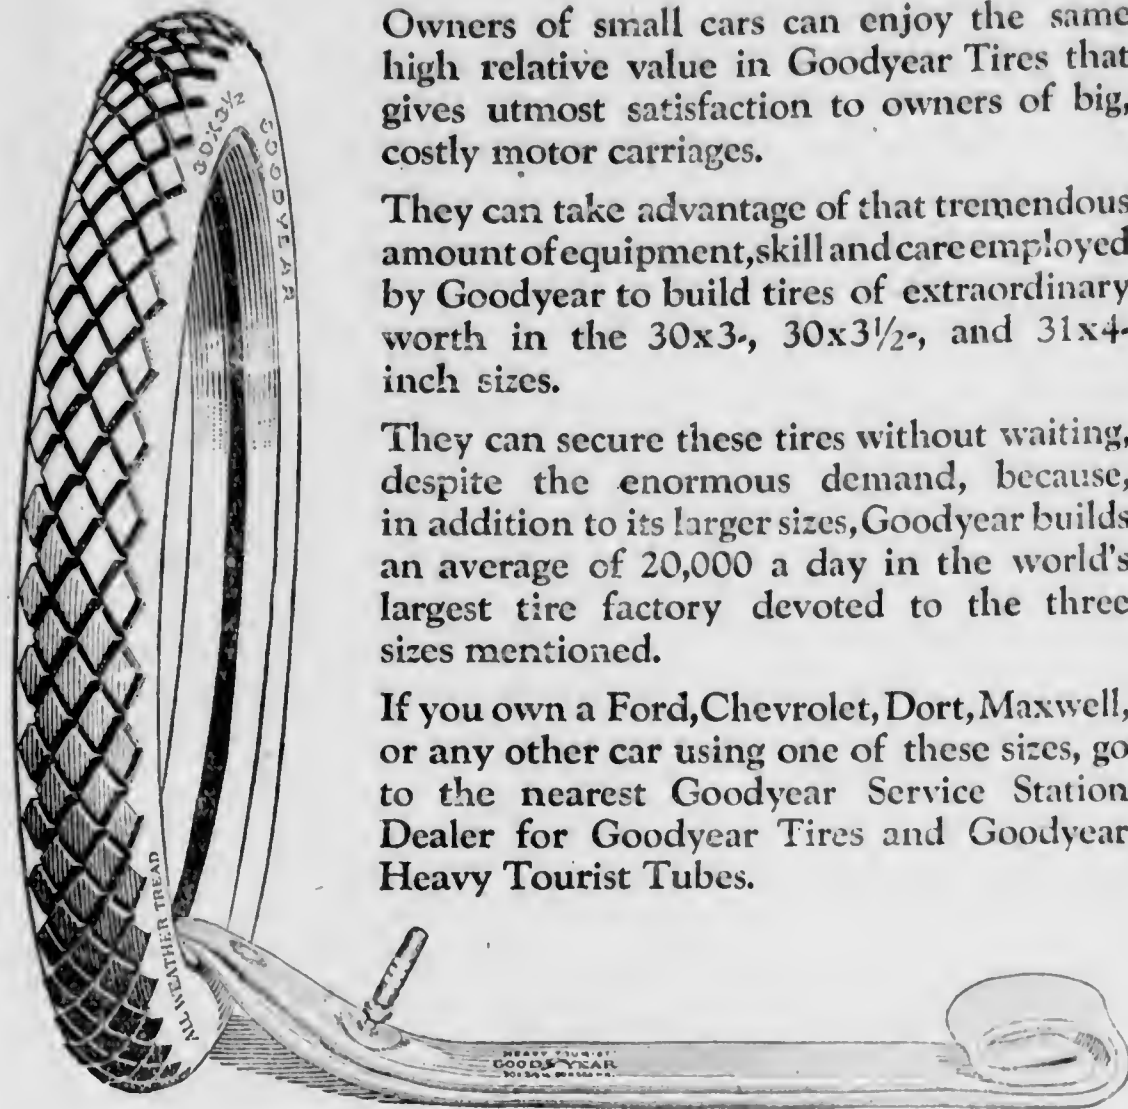

Counting it only in dollars and cents, how much did that last cold cost you? A man may not always stop work when he has a cold, but perhaps it would be better if he did. It takes about ten days to get completely rid of a cold under the usual treatment. That time can be much shortened by taking Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and proper care of yourself. In fact, a bottle of this remedy in the house is a mighty good investment during the winter and spring months.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Viscount Grey's admirable letter to the London Times disposes completely of the artful contention that so far as our European allies are concerned the Senate's reservations "nullify" the peace treaty. The case for unconditional ratification has rested almost entirely on the fraudulent claim that American reservations, unless they were merely "interpretative" and therefore nugatory, would involve a breach of faith with the other signatory governments and could be properly resented by them. The Senate has been held up to scorn as taking a low and mean advantage of our associates by pressing on them modifications of the treaty to which they could not assent without loss of self respect. It was only in this sense that the President's repeated protests against "nullification" could be clothed with any semblance of generosity of feeling or moral force.

The returning British ambassador speaks with full knowledge of conditions in this country as well as in Europe. It is becoming more and more evident that Great Britain, France and Italy are not antagonistic to the Senate reservations. Fear that the reservations will "nullify" the treaty seems to be confined chiefly to the White House. And that is because they frustrate the President's personal conception of the treaty rather than the European conception of it. Europe is not worrying over the wording of the reservation on Article X or on the Monroe Doctrine. Viscount Grey's statement, the fruit of his candid investigations here, is high welcome, and ought to be helpful. It has put it beyond the president's power to claim any longer that in opposing the Senate's reservations he is fighting the league's battle and Europe's instead of his own.—New York Tribune.

Owners of small cars can enjoy the same high relative value in Goodyear Tires that gives utmost satisfaction to owners of big, costly motor carriages.

They can take advantage of that tremendous amount of equipment, skill and care employed by Goodyear to build tires of extraordinary worth in the 30x3, 30x3½, and 31x4-inch sizes.

They can secure these tires without waiting, despite the enormous demand, because, in addition to its larger sizes, Goodyear builds an average of 20,000 a day in the world's largest tire factory devoted to the three sizes mentioned.

Speaking of Bryan's opposition to his candidacy for President, Governor Edwards, of New Jersey, says he does not think it important that he should be nominated but he does think it important that Bryan should not be. Both thoughts are more or less correct. But why should there be so much light among the brethren? The Democrats want all the votes they can get, wet votes as well as dry votes, and we expect they will not get enough in any event. A ticket made up of Bryan and Edwards or Edwards and Bryan might get both dry and wet votes. Nobody could vote for one without voting for the other and both sides would be cleaned up.—Philadelphia Press.

There are people who will not enjoy the Grey letter, just as Junkerdom did not enjoy the cold, clear honest way in which Grey dealt with the Prussian at the beginning of the war. His frankness will not be praised in some quarters of Washington. It will not evoke cheers in the ranks of those Englishmen who believed that Mr. Lloyd George, bringing home the signature of President Wilson to a document which would, if ratified by the Senate, bind us to be polio-man and hanker in every Old World quarrel, had performed the most useful diplomatic service for England since Disraeli's time. But Grey has told England the truth about America's view of the covenant and both sides of the Atlantic will be the better off for his habit of honest expression.—New York Sun.

The terms of a temporary agreement for the settlement of the Plume questions have been agreed upon by England, France, Italy and Japan. President Wilson alone dissents. His refusal holds up the making of peace not only as to Italy and the Adriatic, but also as to the Jugoslavs.

It is remarkable in the circumstances that all Italy now denounces Mr. Wilson as unanimously as it formerly praised him? Americans are strongly in favor of them.—New York American.

Carrying a Ton a Mile for less than a Cent

Freight rates have played a very small part in the rising cost of living.

Other causes—the waste of war, under-production, credit inflation—have added dollars to the cost of the necessities of life, while freight charges have added only cents.

The average charge for hauling a ton of freight a mile is less than a cent.

A suit of clothing that sold for $30 before the war was carried 2,265 miles by rail from Chicago to Los Angeles for 16½ cents.

Now the freight charge is 22 cents and the suit sells for $50.

The cost of the suit has increased 20 dollars.

The freight on it has increased only 5½ cents.

Other transportation charges enter into the cost of the finished article—carrying the wool to the mills and the cloth to the tailors—but these other charges amount to but a few cents more.

The $10 pair of shoes that used to sell for $5 goes from the New England factory to the Florida dealer for a freight charge of 5½ cents—only one cent more than the pre-war rate.

Beef pays only two-thirds of a cent a pound freight from Chicago to New York.

American freight rates are the lowest in the world.

nine of them to Church papers for editors; they gave ninety-three of their daughters to be the wives of Southern Methodist preachers, and they have four thousand "sons in the ministry," being the men who became preachers under the prayers, encouragement, and tutelage of these old servants.

If God should rebuke the Methodist Episcopal Church, for its shameful neglect of her superannuated preachers by withdrawing in some way all those in the Christian ministry of said Church who are there by virtue of the faithful service of preachers now superannuated, what a terrible calamity it would be! Many prominent Churches would be without pastors, some Church schools without presidents and a number of efficient teachers, some mission fields would suffer and throughout the whole Church there would be a state of affairs resembling the frightful situation during the plagues of Egypt when "there was not a house where there was not one dead."

Can we as a great Church accept from our superannuates what is stated in the foregoing and continue to allow them to live almost as beggars? Shall we stand by while every secular corporation in the land is feverishly hurrying to make a just and adequate provision for aged and retired employees and do nothing but roll our thumbs? Is it Christian to feed and clothe needy men and women on the other side of the world and at the same time allow our own brothers to languish at our feet begging the crumbs that fall from our table?

Concerning Their Support.—Our one thousand superannuated preachers served 5,000 mission charges at an average salary of $390 (including missionary appropriations); they served 14,000 self-supporting charges (so-called) at an average annual salary of $460; they received at the highest average annual salary $800, and the lowest $202; they suffered a total salary deficit of $3,000,000, which means the Church actually owes them today an average of $7,000,000, as "back pay." They now receive an average annual superannuation allowance of $212.

If we will not raise a great fund for superannuate endowment, I do think the Church should raise that $3,000,000 "back pay," don't you? Suppose any other class of men had a sum like that due for work that was done and not paid for, what would happen? If our one thousand old heroes had their "back pay" right now, they would have enough to keep them through sunny chills, winters and hot summers. I am hoping this will come under the eye of Church officials who will do some serious thinking on this subject of "back pay." Let the preacher be paid as are other men—in full and when it is due.

Some Personal Matters.—Of our one thousand superannuates, the average age is sixty-seven, and the average age of their wives is fifty-nine; there are 260 with good eyes, 330 with medium eyes, and 400 with very bad eyes (many of these practically blind); there are 270 with good ears, 240 with medium ears, and 470 with very bad ears (practically deaf); there are 440 invalids or practically so; there are 170 who have dependent invalids to support; there are 570 who own homes, but almost without exception there is a heavy mortgage; 60 live in superannuate homes, and 370 rent, board, or "visit around"; there are 600 able to attend Annual Conference and 400 of these prevented from doing so on account of the expense; there are 75 who serve as "supply"; there are 600 who take the Christian Advocate, 800 take the Conference organ, 300 take other Advocates, and 300 take other Church periodicals.

Well, What of It?—Is it nothing to you? Are you able to sit through a recital of the work accomplished by the superannuates, closing with a statement about their helplessness and great need at the present time and never "bat an eye?" I do not believe you can or will. You will be sending a check to the Board of Finance, Security Building, St. Louis, Mo., for the Superannuate Endowment Fund. Do it now; make it as big as you can, and mail it right away. —Christian Advocate.

The Daily Visit Of The Herald Means To You And Your Family

That you are keeping abreast of the times; that you are keeping in touch with the period in which you are living; that you are protecting yourself against the handicap of not being informed.

The daily newspaper is the great civilizer, the great educator; people may live far from the centers of the world's activities, and yet be as well informed, and as much in touch with the world's progress, as those in a better favored locality, and all through the daily visit of a metropolitan newspaper.

And how few people there are who realize the expenditure of brains, labor and wealth, that is necessary, in order that your daily paper may be possible; how few people have any conception of the number of men, that are scattered all over the civilized world, working at all hours, and under all conditions, that you may have your daily newspaper.

Your two-cent investment brings you a wonderful return in a newspaper. No other line of business can begin to compare with it; take up your today's newspaper and look it over.

On the first page you will find Associated Press dispatches from New York, telling some news story that has been shot over the wire; Washington has a story of deep political import; London, Paris, Madrid and Constantinople have cabled their stories of European affairs; there is a local scoop that has had part of the staff up on its toes the greater part of the night.

Then there is your state news; correspondents are working all over Kentucky gathering the news that is bound to be of interest to you, sending it over the wires to The Herald, and today you may sit down and read all this at less expense than you may mail a letter.

Here is a dispatch from Boston; here one from San Francisco; here one from Montreal, and here another from San Antonio; from all points of the world able news gatherers are keeping the wires hot that you may have the world's latest happenings.

You are daily kept informed as to the fluctuations of the Stock Markets; you can find the daily quotations on all your products; grain, livestock, tobacco, oil; you have the market price on these and all other fluctuating commodities each morning of the year.

There are many cartoons by the best of artists; there are daily stories by the best of authors; there are special features by those who are best capable of writing them; there are poems that will live long in your memory.

There is comedy and tragedy; there is poetry and prose; there is wit and wisdom; there is news from everywhere, about everything; there is something that appeals to you, your wife, your daughter, your son. And beyond all this, there is a bureau of information connected with this paper that will gladly furnish you with any information you may desire.

The daily newspaper is an absolute necessity in these days; with it you are equipped to take your place among the progressive people of the world; without it you might as well be in darkest Africa. We naturally would suggest that you take The Herald. If you are not familiar with it, upon request we will gladly send you a copy. We would also suggest that in order to protect yourself against a possible raise in rates for the coming year, that you give your order to your local agent now. "BY THEIR FRUITS YE SHALL KNOW THEM"

After two months of patient and painstaking work I have concluded a survey of the superannuates. A questionnaire, wherein some seventy questions were asked, was sent to each of them. A great many startling facts have been revealed by the returns. The following represents the work accomplished by the one thousand superannuated preachers during their years of active service in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. The figures are not guesswork, but scientifically based on actual reports received from the men who did the work. These facts deserve a careful reading by all Southern Methodists.

Fruits of Service in Church Property.—Our one thousand living superannuates built 4000 churches at a cost of $8,000,000; they repaired 5,000 churches at a cost of $2,000,000; they built fifteen hundred parsonages at a cost of $2,500,000; they repaired three thousand parsonages at a cost of $1,000,000; and they secured other church property valued at $2,000,000. Thus these heroes created for their Church a total property value of $15,500,000.

"Forgotten men," are they? How can it be with so many church buildings and comfortable parsonages standing monumental to their fidelity? If we persist in forgetting these men, the very walls of these buildings will scream at us until we remember.

Fruits of Service in the Pastoral Relation.—Our one thousand living superannuates united in marriage 263,000 couples, conducted 410,000 funerals, christened by holy baptism 322,000 babies, organized 39,000 Sunday Schools, 9,000 Women's Missionary Societies and 7,000 Epworth Leagues, secured 382,000 Advocate subscriptions, raised on the Conference collections a total of $6,000,000, and added to the Church a total of 1,580,000 members.

Think of the limitless possibilities that face us today in our Sunday schools, Women's Missionary Societies and Epworth Leagues. The superannuated preachers brought these organizations into existence, at least the great majority of them. We are now but perfecting the work which they started and reaping rich harvests from their sowing.

If those 263,000 couples made happy by these old servants would each give $10 today to the Superannuate Endowment Fund, the total contributed by them would be $2,630,000; if a representative from each of the churches served by them in those 410,000 funerals would now give $10 to the S. E. F., as an expression of gratitude, the total so contributed would be $4,100,000; if for every baby christened by preachers who are superannuated some grateful loved one would now give $10 to the S. E. F., the total would be $2,630,000 multiplied by ten, or $26,300,000; if every person who joined the Church under the influence of preachers who are now superannuated would give today an average of $10 each to the S. E. F., the total so contributed would be $15,580,000. Notwithstanding all this, the amount of this fund after 20 years of effort is only $570,000. Yes, the superannuates are "forgotten men."

Fruits of Service in the Christian Ministry.—Our one thousand superannuated preachers gave 234 of their own sons to the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South—enough to supply every pulpit to-day in the bounds of the Missouri Annual Conference; they gave forty-eight of their sons and daughters to missionary service in foreign fields, three hundred and three of them to Church schools for teachers, thirty

FRIDAY,.....FEBRUARY 20

Every Republican in the County who can do so, should attend the County Mass Convention here Saturday, Feb. 28.

We will be glad when all the groundhogs are dead. It has been colder since his day than during the whole winter and to know that it is all his fault!

Had it not been for the expressions of love, admiration and confidence found betwixt the lines and the fellows manner in which Woodrow and Lansing brought their little correspondence to a close we might have thought that they were a bit sore, each on the other.

Lansing made the tenth member of Wilson's Cabinet to resign since his regime as President. Three surrendered their portfolios to accept other offices, three because of differences with the President and four on account of being hard-up, more popularly styled, for pecuniary reasons.

What has become of the old-fashioned minister who used to preach against laying up money to rust and corrode, while in this mundane sphere? The few shekels we get bear no rust and they do not corrode, neither doth moths prey upon them but we sometimes feel like it goes the other way, although they have not broken in upon us.

We frankly confess that what we don't know about the Flume affair and proposed compromise amounts to considerably more, by several times than what we do know, but as we are not at this date, a party to the treaty and may never be, would it not be just as good for the U. S. A., and the Allies if we should keep fingers out of the pie for the present?

Our friends, the Democrats, appear to get quite a bit of satisfaction out of the recent special election held for a member of Congress in the third Missouri district, wherein a Democrat was elected. We know that the district was recently represented by a Democrat, but what we wish to learn is, by how much was the original Democratic majority increased, and the other way round, by just how much was the republican vote decreased? We have not been able to see the figures and therefore do not know who should properly rejoice.
Or maybe it was a sort of dog-fall.

We note that quite a number of papers get some consolation out of an apparent thought that there are a lot of people opposed to President Wilson who would make capital out of his sickness. We notice that one calls it "his enfeebled" condition. If there be any in that class we are not of it. We have sincerely wished that the President would recover his former health, and speedily too. But we will say this much, whether he has or has not fully recovered from his so-called enfeebled condition, from recent signs and symptoms we can't keep from believing that he is just a wee-bit ill.

The Republicans of Ohio County, called to meet in Convention here Feb. 28, are to send delegates to the Fourth District and State Conventions, who will in turn select and commission representatives to choose the next Republican Candidate for President and in all probability the man so selected will be the Chief Executive of our Nation after the 4th of March, next. It therefore behooves every Republican to exercise his right and to perform his duty in the selection of Ohio County's representatives who are to act for us, through others, that the Government in the Nation may not be a one-man affair, but truly of, for and by the people. The work of the Republicans here is simply to be the laying of the corner stone, upon and from which the Governmental structure is to arise. Don't forget the date or the occasion, lend your hand in starting this structure, in which the keystone will be placed on November 2, 1920, by the American Electorate.

DEMOCRACY OR WHAT?

The Governments of the earth, of any consequence, that are of the people, for the people, by the people, who do not put the United States of America to shame when it comes to pure and undefiled Democracy may be numbered by the fingers of one hand and then not use all of them, by any means. If the Constitution grants unto the President all of the powers recently assumed by the present Chief Executive, he is certainly going further than any of his predecessors earned to travel on constitutional permits and limitations. We really believe that we have the most complete one-man Government now in existence.
When for months, the one man who for all intents and purposes, governs mentally speaking, was wholly incapacitated, if it was a violation of the constitution for the various heads of the departments of government to meet and informally discuss what might be best to do in and with the momentous questions constantly coming before their various departments that the wheels of government should not cease to revolve, and with the view of doing the very best in all things for the people, then, we say it is high-time that the constitution should be amended. No sane man, not an autocrat, would for a moment object to his Cabinet pursuing the methods adopted by Secretary of State Lansing and the others. In fact, we can't possibly conceive of their doing otherwise. The one self-appointed man who agreed to the peace treaty, who took it upon himself to make it, single-handed; who says that it can not, must not be changed in any manner; who kept us out of war, and by the same token put us in war;
who gave the word to his followers to bow and yield, when he was a candidate to succeed himself, to the demands of a certain class for more wages, which was the first time in our history that such a thing was done. And now this man threatens to break off relations with Europe if certain things are done, or not done.
It is with a great degree of excuse that England, France and quite a good many other countries give us the horse laugh about our boasted democracy. The King of Prussia and Emperor of all the Germans never assumed unto himself more power than does the present President of the U. S. A. We are strongly inclined to the opinion that there is something wrong at Washington. If it be not a loose screw or button, then it must be that the President is the king-ple of all those autocratically inclined who ever occupied the Presidential chair.
Do we live in a Democracy or what?

FAIR PROFITS.

The Fair Price Commission has fixed the maximum profits Kentucky Retailers may make on shoes and wearing apparel for men and women at 50 per cent on the gross cost. If the percentage of profits allowable on the thousand and one other articles that the average department or general store sells has been announced we have overlooked it. We presume that if 50 per cent be a fair profit on such goods as clothing and shoes, the other articles ought to be sold at a profit of 75 to 125 or 150 per cent. It takes but little longer to sell a man a suit of $60.00 clothes than it does to sell the average lady an ordinary gingham dress pattern. In the dress pattern the merchant has but little invested, as a matter of course, neither does his profit amount to very much, while for a suit of clothes in which he would have $40.00 invested he would clean up $20.00. It would probably require 8 or 10 clerks in the notion department of a general store to sell a sufficient amount of goods to equal the profits accruing from the sales of one clerk in a clothing store. In a shoe store the difference in profits per salesman, would not be so great, compared with one in the other departments, but still, one shoe salesman would probably pile up as great a sum in a days service as four or five in the other departments. Probably less shopworn and damaged or undesirable stuff is found in shoe and clothing departments on stock-taking-day than is found in the other departments, hence not as great, or at least no greater loss is suffered along those lines. Not so very long ago we spent about an hour in a clothing store and saw a salesman handle three customers, making three sales that totaled $180.00, perhaps a bit more. At the 50 per cent arrangement this merchant had $120.00 invested and his profits, less expense of the sales and etc., amounted to $60.00. If the same ratio was kept up during the whole working day the fruits of this one salesman's labor would have shown profits of about $480.00. But it is not to be supposed that he sold at such a rapid rate during the whole of the day, though he did not need to do so in order to enrich his employer. This Fair Price fixing business looks like a joke to the uninitiated. If 50 per cent be fair on clothing, then we may expect to pay for everything we buy from drygoods and clothing merchants all the way from 50 to 150 per cent profit. In fixing the scale of profits we notice that the merchants have invariably gotten all they asked for and of course they are satisfied, whether the customers are or not.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

"It is useless for the Government to urge thrift on the people unless it first sets the example. The Government is the agent of the people. It represents them in their collective activities. It is the hugest single spender in the country. Why, then, shouldn't it retrench before it gives lectures on retrenchment—before it tries to get the cost of living reduced through individual action? Senator McCumber brought this point home forcibly the other day when he said that the people as a whole cannot go back to a normal economic basis so long as the Government keeps up its abnormal extravagance." He put the case somewhat exaggeratedly for the sake of emphasis, when he told the Senate: "Government extravagances are solely responsible for the high cost of living today, which, when analyzed, means nothing more or less than that we are indulging in a wild orgy of spending borrowed money."— New York Tribune.

"The need of a national budget system grows constantly more clear as the financial situation of the country is unfolded. An official estimate has just been made of the amount of money that will be required to run the Government for the next fiscal year. This is placed at over five billion dollars, and even then this amount does not include anything for the Railroad Administration, and it is certain that financial assistance will be required along this line. Nor does it include any new venture that may be undertaken, nor any new necessity that may arise. Without the consideration at all of these things, the amount required will be the equivalent of a tax of forty-seven dollars upon each and every person in the United States. Chairman Good, of the Appropriations Committee of the House, does well at this time to point out how vital is the need for a system of appropriating Government funds that will be based on sound judgment and clear perspective."— Philadelphia Press.

"A representative in Congress conscientiously determined to waste none of his time, for which Uncle Sam pays him $20 a day, Sundays and holidays included, breathlessly informed the House that:

"If the $22,000,000,000 that the war cost the United States were counted in silver dollars it would take a man counting seventy-two a minute working eight hours a day 1-744 years to count them.

"If the silver dollars were laid side by side they would stretch 520-833 miles.
"Their weight would be 687,500
short tons.

"Loaded in box cars of forty tons capacity, they would make a train of 17,187 cars 130 miles in length."

"Has the industrious statesman pursued his interesting studies far enough to arrive at an estimate of how long it would take American taxpayers to pay a national debt of $22-000,000,000 silver, plus the Government's running expenses, if nothing is done to lower the cost of administration."—New York Sun.

"Compulsory education for aliens and illiterate citizens as proposed in an Americanization bill in Congress is a good thing. It is the public ignorance in which perniciolous doctrines find their nourishing soil, and it was the terrible illiteracy of Russia which rendered it such an easy prey, first to despotism of an autocrat and then to the despotism of Bolshevism. And ignorance in a country of opportunity like this, is as inexcusable as it is dangerous."—Baltimore American.

LALLEY LIGHT and POWER

Long Non-Stop Runs Proves Lalley Quality

Time and again, the Lalley has proven that it is an extraordinarily good electric light and power plant.
But the most convincing recent proof, was given at a number of state and county fairs in the fall of 1919.

At these fairs, Lalley plants were run day and night, without stopping, throughout the fairs.

The shortest time recorded was 102 hours; the longest 216 hours.
The average was 138 hours, or more than 5½ days.

In every case, when the plant was stopped, there was no sign of wear. Instead, there was every evidence that the plants could have been run indefinitely, for days and even weeks.

Long non-stop tests at the Lalley factory are common occurrences, and these are made as severe as possible.

But we believe these records of continuous runs in public are unparalleled.

These machines were standard Lalley plants, regularly manufactured for the market. They were taken from dealers' and distributors' stocks. They performed without the constant supervision of factory experts—out in the open, where anyone and everyone could see.

No owner, of course, ever needs to run his Lalley for days at a time without stopping. But such performances help buyers to realize the Lalley ability to give them reliable, economical and efficient service, day and night, whenever they need it.

There are many reasons why the Lalley does give this unrivalled service—service so satisfactory that the Lalley is the preferred electric light and power plant for farms, and everywhere that central station electricity is not easily and cheaply obtainable.

It has been in actual daily farm use for about ten years—proving itself absolutely reliable under all conditions.

It has only three moving parts—no complicated mechanism to get out of order and wear out rapidly.

It is ball-bearing equipped, which, with only three moving parts, practically eliminates internal friction and wear.

It is water-cooled, like the Liberty airplane motor, and practically every automobile motor. Lalley water-cooling keeps the engine always at the proper heat, insuring the best service and the longest life.

All we ask is the chance to demonstrate the Lalley plant for you.
Come to our store, or telephone and we will go to your house.

Lalley Light is a complete unit—engine and generator—on 16-cell storage battery. It supplies ample electricity for lights, water pump, sewing machine, refrigerator, cream separator, juanang, etc., etc.

HEN DIES AT 32

A black Spanish hen owned by James Blaachard, of Dayville, Conn., has just departed this life at the ripe age of 32 years. She probably held the record for longevity among barnyard fowls. She had been a prize-winner when young, when all of her feathers were black. At 15 years her plumage turned white, as a result of age and trouble. In the last year of her life she mothered a brood and laid a few eggs.

OVER 2000 MILES IN CANOE.

A Pittsburger has harked back to a primitive but romantic mode of travel in going from Pittsburg to New Orleans by canoe. The canoeist is F. C. Deaninger. His trip down the Allegheny, Ohio and Mississippi rivers took 54 days. The distance covered was about 2,200 miles. Many early pioneers took the same trip in flat boats, laden with furs or other articles of commerce. Arrived in New Orleans they sold their flat-boats for what they would bring and worked their way back home as best they might with the proceeds of their sale concealed about them.

TELEPHONE SYSTEMS NUMEROUS

The 28,000,000 miles of telephone wires in the United States belong to 52,000 systems. These lines employ 262,000 persons, all but 90,000 of whom are women. Wages amount to about $175,000,000 annually and the plants and equipment approach one and a half billions of dollars in value.
Four-fifths of the systems are controlled by the Bell company. In all some 22,000,000,000 talks were carried on over the phone in 1917; so says the department of commerce in a report just made.

SAYS MONKEYS TALK.

After 30 years of study, Prof. R.
L. Garner, who has just died, concluded that monkeys communicate with one another by means of spoken words. His first intimation of this ability came while studying monkeys in a cage and observing that they seemed to make themselves understood to each other by means of a quasi-kind of jargon. He employed the phonograph to show that the sounds they utter have an intelligible meaning. The chimpanzees, he said, stand highest in the vocal and cultural scale among the apes. The gorilla is second and the orang-out-angs third.

NEW NOTE HOLLAND REGARDING KAISER

London, Feb. 13.—A new Allied note to Holland regarding the extradition of former Emperor William will be dispatched tomorrow, according to the Evening Standard today.

The note, says the newspaper, makes a strong appeal to the Dutch Government not to create greater difficulties in Europe by insisting on the right of asylum for the man characterized as the author of the world's present troubles.

From other sources it was learned this afternoon that the council was engaged in completing the note to Holland. The note was being drawn, it was stated, in a form to emphasize the concerted view of the Allies that the presence of the former Emperor in Holland was a danger to the peace of Europe.

Chronic Constipation.

There are people who never have a movement of the bowels without it is produced by a cathartic. Most of them have brought that condition on themselves by the use of mineral waters and strong cathartics that take too much water out of the system and aggravate the disease they are meant to relieve. A mild laxative tonic like Chamberlain's Tablets affords a gentle movement of the bowels that you hardly realize has been produced by a medicine, and their use is not so likely to be followed by constipation.

Co-operation of the various organizations of the city, which can be of assistance, was promised the adjutant and prospects for re-establishment of the national guard appeared encouraging to him. —Louisville Herald.

Periodic Bilious Attacks.

DRAFT-DODGER CAUGHT.

One of the most sensational cases of draft-dodging ended in the capture of the fugitive the other day. The man involved was G. C. Bergdoll, son of a wealthy former Philadelphia brewer. With his brother, Erwin, a well-known automobile racer, he escaped the draft and evaded all pursuit for two years. Now he has been taken to Governor's Jail for court-martial. He was arrested at his mother's house, despite a forcible resistance which she put up. In fact her actions were such that she also was arrested.

OPERA SINGERS VICTIMIZED

The claque or gang that is paid to give applause has been a feature of European theaters and has now had a brief trial in Chicago. According to the complaint of two tenors of the Grand Opera company, singers have been paying from $50 a week to $20 a performance to this claque. The managers have notified all their singers that payment for applause is no part of the general plan of operation.

CALLED HER FAMILY TO HER BEDSIDE

Six Years Ago, Thinking She Might Die, Says Texas Lady, But Now She Is a Well, Strong Woman and Praises Cardui For Her Recovery.

Royce City, Tex.—Mrs. Mary Kilman, of this place, says: "After the birth of my little girl...my side commenced to hurt me. I had to go back to bed. We called the doctor. He treated me...but I got no better. I got worse and worse until the misery was unbearable...I was in bed for three months and suffered such agony that I was just drawn up in a knot... I told my husband if he would get me a bottle of Cardui I would try it... I commenced taking it, however, that evening I called my family about me... for I knew I could not last many days unless I had a change for the better. That was six years ago and I am still here and owe a well, strong woman, and I owe my life to Cardui. I had only taken half the bottle when I began to feel better. The misery in my side got less... I continued right on taking the Cardui until I had taken three bottles and I did not need any more for I was well and never felt better in my life... I have never had any trouble from that day to this."

Do you suffer from headache, backache, pains in sides, or other discomforts, each month? Or do you feel weak, nervous and fagged-out? If so, give Cardui, the woman's tonic, a trial.

LUMBER FIRMS FACE CONSPIRACY CHARGE

Memphis, Feb. 14.—Three hundred and thirty-three hardwood lumber companies and individuals in sixteen states are named as defendants in a bill filed in Federal District Court here today charging a conspiracy to restrain trade in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law through the operation of an "open competition" plan in which the defendant concerns are alleged to have joined.

Hearing of the petition for a temporary injunction was set for March 8. Judge C. D. Ames, assistant attorney general, and Henry S. Mitchell, a special assistant, under whose direction the suit was filed here, will appear for the government.

The bill recites that recommendations had been distributed among the defendants to make oral agreements at group meetings to be held monthly which, the government charges, would eliminate competition.

States in which defendant concerns are located include Ohio, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, North Carolina, Missouri, Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee, Illinois, New York, Indiana and Alabama.

POISON LIKE UNTO Vemon of Snakes

Professor H. Strauss, M. D., of the Royal Charity Hospital, says, "The cause for an attack of gout, rheumatism, lumbago, is supplied by the increase of uric acid in the blood serum, the result of various causes, the most frequent of which is renal. Before an attack, one suffers sometimes from headache, neuralgia, twinges of pain here and there."

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead, when the back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; when you suffer with sick headache, or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach; or you have rheumatic pains or lumbago, gout, sciatica when the weather is bad, do not neglect the warning, but try simple means. Take six or eight glasses of water during the day, then obtain at your nearest drug store "An-uric" (anti-uric acid).

This is the discovery of Dr. Pierce of the Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y. "An-uric" is an antidote for this uric acid poisoning and dissolves uric acid in the body much as hot coffee dissolves sugar. "An-uric" will penetrate into the joints and muscles, and dissolve the poisonous accumulations. It will stamp out toxemia. Send 10 cents to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., for trial package.

FARM DEPARTMENT.

How To Rid Flock of Fleas.

In many of the southern and southwestern States fowls and chicks are often infested by a species of flea commonly known as the "stick-tight" flea, because of its habit of sticking to one place on the bird instead of moving about like lice and mites. They are usually found in clusters on the comb, wattles, and around the eyes. Chicks, when infested, often die quickly. Old fowls, while usually stronger and more resistant, will cease laying, or nearly so, and sometimes die as the result of the attacks. "Stick-tight" fleas breed in cracks and crevices of brood coops and poultry houses, and dry animal or vegetable refuse, but not in damp or wet places. Therefore, to get rid of them it is necessary to clean and spray the houses and runs thoroughly, as well as to treat the birds, say poultry specialists in the United States Department of Agriculture. Grease the comb and wattles of the fowls and chicks with a preparation of kerosene and lard—1 part kerosene to 3 parts of lard—being very careful not to use too much of the mixture or get any of it in the birds' eyes or on other places where it is not necessary, as it may cause injury if used too freely. Clean and spray the coops and houses thoroughly, the same as for poultry mites; also wet or spray the yards or runs, especially any dry soil about the poultry houses, such as dirt floors or ground underneath a board floor, with a solution of salt and water, which helps to keep the ground moist and prevents the fleas from breeding.

Learn About Tractors.

The County Agent is asked innumerable questions about tractors. Some he can answer and others he cannot. So he is giving below a review of Bulletin 222, "Tractor Experience in Kentucky," which appeared in the Southern Agriculturist.

"The farmer in Kentucky who has been considering the use of a tractor will be glad to know that a bulletin has been issued by the Experiment Station at Lexington which will help him to solve his problem. 'Tractor Experience in Kentucky,' Bulletin No. 222, by W. D. Nicholls, associate editor of this paper is full of up-to-the-minute information. Fortunately, this information has not been developed through field tests at the Experiment Station; but it has been secured from 320 farmers who are now using tractors on their farms in Kentucky.

A concise summary of the chief advantages of the tractor for everyday farm use cover the first two pages of the booklet, allowing the farmer to get his bearings before he reads the complete bulletin. The farmer should not, however, think of the bulletin as of great size, for it contains only 22 pages, including photographs of tractors at work. Any farmer who reads this small pamphlet carefully and then discusses it thoroughly with his neighbors will have a fairly good idea of the strong points and the weak points to be kept in mind when buying an iron horse. Every farmer owning 150 acres which he fairly well for cultivation should write the Experiment Station at Lexington Ky. for Bulletin No. 22. It will pay him and he should do it now."

M. L. McCracken.

Co-operation Paid.

Any community can cooperate successfully if it will begin with the things at home. The County Agent has clipped from a late issue of the Southern Agriculturist the following simple story of community cooperation:

"During educational week last Aug. the patrons of the Pigeon Roost School District of Jackson County, Kentucky, met at the school house and formed an organization to extend the work of the farmers' club and a committee was appointed to outline a system of work for the betterment of the community. The committee reported at the next meeting that the school children needed a number of walk logs across small streams and also a wire foot bridge across a large creek. It was suggested that a model road fronting the school properly more than 175 yards long be built; that the school grounds should have some shade trees; the house be painted; window shades provided; and a large lamp for the benefit of the club at night, be procured.

The money required for these improvements was raised in two ways—first, by freewill offerings, and second, by a pie supper held at the school building. The boys and girls furnished the entertainment. About $70 was raised. It required a considerable amount of time to do all the committee had planned, but by all the district being willing to lend a helping hand in both money and work, the work was completed without any hardships to anyone.

Limestone Pays.

When everybody is boosting limestone the county agent is always delighted to give an added boost. A clipping taken from the Southern Agriculturist is given here as a splendid boost for the generous use of ground limestone:

"The tremendous value of ground limestone is recognized far back in the foothills of the mountains of Kentucky. During the past summer the Rough Creek Community Club, has bought cooperatively four carloads of this soil-sweetening dust and hauled it ten miles from London, Ky. Five miles of this ten miles is a new macadam road, but the remaining five-mile climb is heavy grades with no metal on it and mud holes are filled with logs or brush. Even a light load is slow work for a splendid team.

"Besides co-operating in the purchase of limestone, this same small club of enthusiastic farmers has bought a lime spreader, so that the limestone might be properly distributed on the land. The Kentucky editor recently visited the country about London and was surprised at the many exquisite green wheat fields that would have graced the fields of the bluegrass of the state. He learned that most of these beautiful fields had had a liberal application of lime, as the farmers had learned that the dust helped both the wheat and the young grass and clover down under the grain.

"When the farmers in the Rough Creek Club understood the value of limestone on their broken mountain farms they were willing to buy it and haul it over heavy roads. The remaking of sandstone soils will soon be an established fact and the rough country in the foothills of the mountains will blossom in heavy crops of clover."

For Kitchen Efficiency.

Arrange your kitchen equipment so that it will give you the most help and take the least work.

Choose things easy to clean and care for.

Try to locate the stove, sink, work table and storage places so there will be no unnecessary steps in moving from one to the other.

Have a good light where you work.

Adjust sinks and work table to the height most comfortable for the person who uses them.

Group your utensils so that you can reach them easily. Put those most frequently used in the most convenient places. Small ones may be hung on little hooks fastened to the wall or the edge of a shelf.

Group them near the places in which they are most used and put those used together near each other.

Get rid of useless things.

Making an Oil Floor Mop.

For tiled or polished floors an oil floor mop is almost a necessity. Several makes can be found on the market, or one may be made of old stockings or any discarded woolen or flannel material. In a Farmers' Bulletin on "Farm Home Conveniences," obtainable free from the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the following directions for making such a mop are given:

The material is cut into 1-inch wide strips, which are sewed across the middle to a foundation of heavy cloth. This is fastened to an old broom handle or used in a clamp mop handle.

The mop, when finished, is dipped into a solution made of one-half cup of melted paraffin and one cup of kerosene, and then allowed to dry. To keep it moist it is rolled tightly and kept in a paper bag, away from stoves or lamps.

Economy Is Acid Test in Judging Good Cooks.

The real superiority of a good cook lies not so much in making fancy or expensive dishes as in the attractive preparation of inexpensive, everyday dishes, and in the skillful combination of flavors. The appetizing dishes a good cook can make out of the cheaper cuts of meat or of meat "left-overs" are almost endless. More skill and time are required in their preparation than in the simple cooking of the more expensive cuts, just as more time and skill are required for careful intelligent marketing than for haphazard ordering. Once upon a time some housekeepers seemed to have a prejudice against economizing. To-day most of them are glad to have suggestions for economical methods which will insure the comfort of the family and keep the meals varied and appetizing as when they cost more. A good housekeeper, the United States Department of Agriculture suggests, should take as much pride in setting a good table at a low price as a manufacturer does in lessening the cost of production in his factory.

In most sections of the United States good pastures, if properly used, give the cheapest feed for cattle and should be utilized for fattening, whenever possible.

Beef-Cattle Judging.

A real need in agricultural regions today is more widespread knowledge of how to judge live stock properly. While the judging of the finest animals is likely to remain an art in which relatively few persons can attain the highest standing, nevertheless farmers as a whole should be thoroughly familiar with the general principles of judging stock. Knowledge of this sort is a real asset.

The art of judging beef cattle is the foundation of all beef-cattle shows, and also is largely the means of determining the value of cattle offered in public sales. It serves as a basis for every man who buys and raises cattle to seek improvement along well-recognized lines.

Sample score cards for fat and feeder-beef cattle and for breeding beef cattle, together with a model card for comparative judging by class or team, constitute part of the material contained in a recent Farmers' Bulletin issued by the Department of Agriculture, entitled "Judging Beef Cattle." The 21 pages of text discuss in popular language the various features of judging beef cattle and it contains suggestions regarding their scoring. The bulletin may be had free upon request.

Which Would You Buy?

IF YOU were buying a farm and there were two farms of exactly the same size for sale, located right next to each other, and if the soil was just the same but—one farm had 80 acres under cultivation and all in crop while the other had only 50 acres in crop, the crops being the same kind, and the farm with the 80 acres in crop had a big red barn and a good house while the other farm had only a small cabin for a house and an old straw-and-mud stable for a barn—

Which farm would you buy in a case like that if the price was about the same in both instances? Foolish question, isn't it?

Well, then—

If you were buying a new wagon and there were two different wagons of the same size that sold at about the same price, but—one wagon had exceptionally well ironed gears, was equipped with a "fifth-wheel" to distribute the strain on the front bolster and prevent whipping of the tongue and rocking of the bolster, and was also equipped with a swivel-reach-coupling to relieve both front and rear gear, axles, wheels, and brake of twisting strains when riding over rough ground, chuck holes, etc.—a wagon just like the standardized auto-track Weber—while the other wagon had none of these features—and we have not yet mentioned the quality of wood stock and the seasoning of the Weber to say nothing of the fact that the Weber Wagon's known reputation is unquestioned—

Which wagon would you buy? Tell us the answer when you are ready to buy a new wagon. We are the exclusive agents in this town for Weber standardized auto-track wagons.

We notice in the papers where a man sued his wife for divorce and alimony and the Court gave him all the divorce he asked for a $50.00 per month alimony. I'm sure going to show that article to my wife. If you see me cutting up around town at night you will know it worked.

We acknowledge that Mr. Ann Tie Red had some grounds for his criticism of our management of the paper, especially wherein we report more deaths than births, but we promise to do better next year, and should we fail, we are going to move to cut out this lumpy year stuff.

A 15 pound child was recently born to Mrs. Logan Johnson, of Lohair, near Whitesburg, Ky. Our critic Mr. Ann Tie Red, of Duluth, Minn., will please N. B. Yes, and Mrs. Cap Davis, of near Beaver Dam, is the mother of a new 12-pound girl. My T. R. will please N. B. some more.

We thought we were to land a good secret and thereby get a story for this column the other day when we saw Mack Pogle approach Bat Nall with a troubled expression and in undertones tell Bat that he wanted to press him to press his suit for him. We thought, "somebody's been handed Mack a rubber mitt. We were did feel relieved when we sneaked up a bit closer and cocked our good ear up and found out it was Mack's coat and trousers he wanted pressed and not that other sort of suit.

CIGARETTE PASSES CIGAR AS THE NATIONAL SMOKE

Cigar types of tobacco are produced in New England, New York, Pennsylvania, the Miami Valley in Ohio, Wisconsin, Georgia and Florida. Of the entire tobacco crop of 1,389,000,000 pounds in 1919, the cigar types constituted about one-sixth, and the chewing, smoking, snuff, and export types most of the remainder, according to the Bureau of Crop Estimates, U. S. Department of Agriculture. The cigar types are heavy producers per acre, the average for 1919 being 1,265 pounds, while the other types had an average of 675 pounds.

Before 1919 the average farm price of the cigar types of tobacco was always above that of the other types, as a whole, but in that year the extraordinary European demand for tobacco other than the cigar classes, and the immensely increased use of tobacco for cigarettes raised the average farm price of the composite chewing, smoking, snuff, and export types to 41.3 cents on December 1, or greatly above the price of 21.9 cents for cigar tobacco. Indeed, the latter class of tobacco had a lower price than in either 1918 or 1917, not because of increase of production, but because of weaker demand. The cigar has been overtaken and passed by the cigarette.

WHERE DID WATER IN THE OCEANS COME FROM?

No, it did not come from the rivers which empty themselves into the oceans, because the oceans were there before the rivers existed. Part of it comes from the rivers now, but only a little in comparison to all the water there is in the ocean. I will try to tell you simply how all the water got into the ocean.

There was a time when there was no water on the earth at all. That was when the earth was red hot, just as it is today on the inside, and at that time all the water we have today was up in the air in the form of gases. Strange as it may seem to you, if you take two gases, one called hydrogen and the other oxygen, and mix them the right way, they will turn into water, and if you had the right kind of chemical apparatus you could take water and turn it into these gases again. When, then, the earth was still all red hot, all of our water was up in the air in the form of these two gases. Then, later on, when the amount of heat on the earth was just right to make these gases mix together, the water came down out of the air in great quantities, and there was so much of it that it completely covered the whole earth and no land was visible. Later on, for various reasons, mountains were thrown up on the earth's surface by great earthquakes, and every time a mountain or high place was formed some place else, and the water ran into these low places and stayed there and that uncovered more of the land, because there wasn't enough water to fill all the holes and cover the land, too, and that is what makes our continents and islands and all of the land we see. There is now about three times as much earth covered with water as there is land. Of course, the sun is always picking up water through what is called evaporation, which means that it is taken into the air in the form of gases. Later it comes down again in the form of rain and falls into the oceans or on the land, where it sinks in, finally finding a stream or river, and sooner or later gets back into the ocean again.

Willie Barrett and Lucy Collins, colored people of Rockport and Echols, were married at the Court House Monday, Judge Cook performing the ceremony.

FOWL HUNTERS USING AIRPLANES ARRESTED

The first arrest under the Migratory Bird Treaty Act for hunting wild fowl from an airplane was made in Missouri recently when the long arm of the law reached into the air and seized two men for hunting and killing wild geese from an air craft. The arrest was made by a warden of the Biological Survey, United States Department of Agriculture, which administers the Migratory Bird Treaty Act. Following their arrest the hunters made the trip to the office of the United States Commissioner at Caruthersville, Mo., in their plane. They had previously boasted of their ability, while flying, to herd the geese more effectively than sportsmen on the ground can possibly do. Hunting of the sort in which they engaged is specifically forbidden by the Federal law and the regulations thereunder. Several States have passed laws forbidding hunting from airplanes, among them being California, Michigan and New Jersey.

AIRPLANES MAY CLIMB HIGHER, BY INVENTION

Two American inventors have worked out a mechanical supercharger to supply air at sea-level pressure to airplane engines at all altitudes. When an airplane whose engine depends on oxygen from the surrounding atmosphere gets high above the earth where the pressure is much below that at sea level its power is seriously reduced; at 8000 feet, for instance, about 50 per cent of the normal power is lost and at 25,000 feet the loss amounts to about 75 per cent. The supercharger which apparently solves the problem that many aviation experts at home and abroad have vainly wrestled with is expected to raise the limit of altitude materially.

EX-KAISER WILHELM'S DEMISE IS STATED

Although the former kaiser of Germany has for his own safety been living in extreme seclusion the world is interested to hear of him now and then, not so much because of any feeling for his welfare as to learn how his mind is bearing up under the weight of his mental burdens and disappointments.

Bill is living under different conditions than he did when he resided at Berlin. His life is changed not only in reference to his relations with others but also his own personal habits. Even his countenance has been metamorphosed and his own mother were she living wouldn't know him.

Before he went away from Germany the more notably he had the better he liked it. He was jealous of anyone who attracted more attention than he did. Now he shuns society and nothing is so distasteful as the curious public who haunt the vicinity of the castle.

William's private physician quit him a short while ago. It is said, that he could not support himself on the meager wages that Bill paid him. A military surgeon was hurriedly summoned from Berlin to guard the Hohenzollern health until another doctor of his.

Could he found whose love for his former ruler was great enough to permit his going into exile with him.

A house in the village of Doorn has been purchased for the ex-kaiser to live in after he leaves Bentlack castle. If there is anything in superstition we may look for William to cross the great divide soon after he takes residence there. A belief is current in the neighborhood that the house has a baneful effect on its male occupants. Past history bears this out. It is told, for men who have gone there live only a short time.

So Bill had better be careful where he takes up his lodgings. He is now past 60, an age when men of irregular proclivities are apt to succumb to the machinations of evil geni more readily than in younger years. Specialists who were formerly close to him declare that he is insane; with such handicaps it would not do to take unnecessary chances.

Niagara Falls, N. Y.—Tests of air in one of the factories here, conducted by officers of the U. S. Public Health Service revealed the fact that each cubic foot of air contained more than 200,000,000 tiny particles of dust, almost as hard as diamond dust and extremely dangerous to the lungs and air passages.
